BATTLE WITH ATTORNEY GENERAL RECOMMENCES

by Pontifex Maximus Matt Hale

On Wednesday November 21st, the Illinois Supreme Court reversed Circuit Court Judge Julia Nowicki's February 27AC decision throwing out a lawsuit brought by Attorney General Jim Ryan that claims that our beloved Church is an "unregistered charity" and seeks, among other things, a fine of $1000, a freezing of our assets, and an injunction forever barring the Church and I from supporting our organizational activities and disseminating our views through the solicitation and raising of funds in the state of Illinois. Needless to say, we most vociferously challenged the constitutionality of the law in question, the "Solicitation for Charity Act", because it obviously infringes upon our supposed First Amendment rights of freedom of speech and freedom of religion. In any case, the Illinois Supreme Court's reversal of Judge Nowicki's decision essentially takes the case back to where it was in the beginning.

It is no huge surprise that the Illinois Supreme Court has held the way that it did. After all, this is the same body of villains that refused to hear my law license case knowing full well that if they indeed heard the case, they would legally have to find in my favor. In what was perhaps the most important First Amendment case concerning lawyers in the history of American jurisprudence, they refused to hear my law license case without comment. Now, however, they have heard the pathetic "case" against the Church and I and ruled that the statute is indeed constitutional even though the statute never even defines what a "charity" is. In other words, Illinois Attorney General Jim Ryan has full leeway under this statute to accuse any individual or entity he dislikes of being a "charity" subject to a complete attempted elimination of their much ballyhooed First Amendment "rights".

As those of you who have been members for awhile already know, this lawsuit was brought in the wake of the Brother Ben "August" Smith shooting spree over the 4th of July weekend, 26AC. Hoping to capitalize on the event and increase his political popularity, Jim "Lyin'" Ryan brought this suit, announcing during a live press conference televised on CNN that he would "shine the light on the financial dealings" of the Church and vowed to "combat" what was, and always has been, after all, our legal and peaceful First Amendment-protected activities. Even the man in the street whose mind has been absolutely saturated with media lies realizes that our Church is not a "charity" and that this lawsuit is a purely political effort by the swine Ryan. Even the media itself has gently chastised Ryan for so obviously misapplying the law in our case, some going so far as to say that any recognition by the state of Illinois that we are a charity would help our Cause since no longer would we be a "hate group" but would instead be a "charity"! And yet, the man continues, wasting thousands of dollars in taxpayer money, but hoping in his sick heart that he'll manage to pick up some votes in his newest election campaign--his run for governor of Illinois--and maybe get some Jew money in the process.

What Ryan and others of ilk fail to realize is that we Creators have more love and devotion for our Cause than they do for theirs. They fail to realize that long after they have grown tired and weary of assaulting us with their legal actions and their desire to twist laws to suit their political purposes, we will remain standing and ready to fight ever longer. Further, and even more importantly, these enemies of the White Racial Resurrection simply cannot win, for even if they were to ultimately prevail in their "on paper" effort to stop our Church from existing, never, never would such an "order" have any impact at all on the inviolability of our faith and fervency. On the contrary, it will only motivate us further to destroy this current order and in addition, the more persecution we face, the more the people will come to our side. It is not those who persecute who make history so much as those who endure the persecution and if we show that our devotion is such that we can and will take the best shots of our enemies, the people we seek to win will behold our sacrifice and will realize that our sacrifice does not exist for nothing, but instead exists for something noble and worthwhile.

The battle with the Attorney General has therefore recommenced from ground zero. There is no need to be alarmed at this news as everything is under control. This is simply an irritation--but one that serves our Cause well. We will prevail. RAHOWA!

Happy West Victory Day!

December 29th is West Victory Day--the Creator alternative to Christmas. On this date in 1890 (83PC), the White man in America finally triumphed over the Indians at the Battle of Wounded Knee Creek in the last organized battle with that race. This is a day for celebration including the giving of gifts to family and friends. World Headquarters wishes all Creators/White Racial Loyalists everywhere a very happy West Victory Day! One day White people everywhere will celebrate WHITE Victory Day! RAHOWA!

Church Holds Twentieth Public Meeting in Champaign, Illinois!

PM Hale spoke as scheduled at the Champaign Public Library on Saturday November 3rd and the Church faced no opposition. Attendance by the masses was very low, however, while a dozen Creators attended. PM Hale spoke on "Let's Stop Being Human Shields for Israel" and other topics for one hour and forty-five minutes. As usual the video of this event is available for $10 ($12 outside U.S.). Get this video and thus count yourself as one of the attendees! This show has also been airing on public access television around the country. RAHOWA!

Creators Demonstrate!

On Saturday November 17th, Creators once again demonstrated in downtown East Peoria holding signs such as "Close the Border", "Arabs & Jews Get Out", and "White Power". This demonstration coincided with a silly "diversity" walk/run being held in East Peoria simultaneously specified designed to combat the activities of the Church. The day must come when the Church has a walk/run for White Power! RAHOWA!

PM Hale Appears on "Radio Europe"!

PM Hale appeared on Radio Europe on Friday November 9th for several minutes sparring with the Jewish host about the events of September 11th, their cause, etc. After PM Hale left the show, the Jew stated on the air that laws should be passed so that PM Hale could be arrested and jailed for saying what he (truthfully) says. In particular, the Jew was miffed when PM Hale said "Adolf Hitler was a great man" and the Jew became more emotional and irrational as a consequence. Remember always that it is good to make Jews lose their cool (as George Lincoln Rockwell taught), for when he does, he shows himself to be the psychologically-disturbed beast that he is for all to witness! RAHOWA!

Legal Sparring Continues

The month of November witnessed much work in several of the pending bogus lawsuits against the Church though with the exception of the Attorney General case, there is nothing definitive to report at this time. However, PM Hale will undoubtedly be speaking in detail about these desperate and futile attacks upon us in his "State of the Church" address in next month's issue of The Struggle. RAHOWA!

PM Hale to Speak in York, Pennsylvania!

Brother Michael Cook of the Wrightsville, Pennsylvania contact point has scheduled a public meeting to be held at the Martin Library, 159 E. Market St. York, PA 17401 from noon to 2pm on Saturday January 12th. PM Hale is set to speak at that time in what will be the first public meeting in Pennsylvania of our beloved Church! Stay tuned to The Struggle and World Headquarters hotline for any further developments. Comrades of New England! Make this great meeting! RAHOWA!

Church to Begin Producing Items Available Catalogue

Starting next month and occurring seasonally, the Church will be sending out an items available catalogue to everyone on the mailing list. This catalogue will include all of the items the Church has and is expected to have available for the season. The catalogue will also include the many, many items that the Church has but does not list in The Struggle each month due to a lack of space. Starting next month, in fact, the Church will likely be listing only new items in each issue of The Struggle. So, be sure to keep your catalogue when you receive it!

The issuance of this catalogue is really overdue for the Church has gathered far more materials through incredible activism on its behalf the past couple years than a monthly newsletter can reasonably contain! It will entail a little expense but certainly will bring in far more money in donations which the Church can and will use to go forward! RAHOWA!

PM Hale Interviews with MSNBC Concerning "9-11"

On Wednesday November 28th, PM Hale interviewed with a crew from MSNBC concerning "9-11" and its aftermath. At the time of this writing, the interview has not yet aired, so if you have cable, keep an eye on this channel! The segment is expected to air sometime around the 6th or 7th of December. RAHOWA!

Keep Calling the World Headquarters Hotline for Weekly Updates!

The number is (309) 699-0135 and the number is generally changed every Tuesday or Wednesday. For those of you on the internet, you can listen to each hotline message through your computer and avoid long distance costs by going to the Church websites at www.creator.org and www.wcotc.com. RAHOWA!

Embroidered Red Creator Polo Shirts Now Available!

Red polo shirt bearing our Holy symbol embroidered! Sizes medium, large, extra large, and extra extra large. Each size of this shirt fits as if it were a size bigger than specified. Obtain your shirt today! Send $25 ($28 outside U.S.). RAHOWA!

Tape of PM Hale Interview on "By Yahweh's Design" Available!

On August 18, 27AC, PM Hale appeared on "By Yahweh's Design", an Identity Christian radio program out of Michigan. While we Creators obviously oppose Christianity and realize that it is a product of the Jewish enemy, Pastor Dan treated PM Hale with great courtesy and respect and this is a show worth listening to. Get your copy of the hour long program today for $6 ($8 outside U.S.) RAHOWA!

Fourth Printing of "The Facts" to be Available Soon!

The Church's Fourth 100,000 count printing of "Facts that the Government and the Media Don't Want You to Know" should be available within the month. This printing will contain much new and updated information. As always, they will be available with rainbags for your mass distribution efforts everywhere! This is the main distribution literature of our beloved Church and has driven the enemies of the White Race absolutely beside themselves for the almost five years now in which they have been circulated! This is because, for the first time ever, pages upon pages of facts are educating the White masses about what the Jews and their lackeys have deliberately keep from them!

Since "The Facts" should be available for this soon, you are encouraged to order your copies today for the usual ten cents apiece, twenty dollar minimum order. In other words, if you send $20, you'll get two hundred copies and two hundred bright orange rainbags for your "paper route." If you send $80, you'll get eight hundred copies and eight hundred rainbags, etc. You can obtain a sample copy for $1. The 4th Printing should be approximately 32 pages as usual also. Make plans for your "Winter Offensive" today, and let the "truth grenades" ("explosive, yet truthful, as PM Hale puts it) fly! RAHOWA!

Regarding Non-Members by Reverend Dan Hassett

RAHOWA! I would like to address our position and attitude in regards to non-members of the WCOTC. Since many of us have obtained a superlative level of enlightenment that far exceeds that of the average person, there is a tendency to be condescending to our Brothers and Sisters who are still, relatively speaking, uneducated. Invariably, this demeanor is unwarranted and can only result in a negative image of the WCOTC and its members.

It is important that we don't forget that there was a time in the past when we too did not understand the world around us. We were not born, after all, with the knowledge and comprehension of the world that we currently possess. It required many years of soul searching and contemplation to reach our current state of mind. Three factors: experience, study, and personal guidance, molded us in varying degrees to what we are the culmination of today. Regardless of the quantitative value each factor played in our metamorphosis, everyone had contact with someone in their past that harbored the patience to help educate them. It is imperative that we extend the same patience and understanding to our comrades who are still befuddled.

Basically, we should avoid rudeness or any other manifestation of a supercilious attitude. We need to be polite, patient and understanding in regards to our fellow White kinsmen. We should answer all questions in a courteous way with the added emphasis on reading our three basic books: Nature's Eternal Religion, The White Man's Bible, and Salubrious Living. Simultaneously, we must make them aware of their lack of knowledge without insulting them. Prospective members will judge us by our conduct relative to them personally even more than through the content of our holy books. It is important that we set a good example for our Folk at large! RAHOWA!

The Relocation Fund Marathon by The Edgefield Primary Group

The members and supporters of the Edgefield Primary Group, in cooperation with World Headquarters, have established a relocation fund to facilitate the relocation of those Creators desirous of making the pilgrimage to central Illinois as per PM Hale's mandate set forth in Issue LXXV, September 28AC, of The Struggle (see The Case for Consolidation).

The purpose and benefits of the Relocation Fund are several fold as will be delineated herein:

First and foremost, the Relocation Fund will provide the financial means to enable World Headquarters to establish a Relocation Center that will accommodate Creator families making the journey to central Illinois by providing the basic amenities, i.e. housing, daycare, laundry, dining, and recreation facilities.

Additional uses of the Relocation Fund would be to provide small business loans, purchasing of pre-existing businesses and creation of a Creator credit union with any surplus funds upon completion of the Relocation Center. The benefits of having Creator owned and operated businesses within the geographical area of central Illinois are numerous. In essence, Creators would be able to provide goods and services to and for Creators thereby recycling our monies and keeping it within our community. The economic strength to be gained by so doing could not and would not be easily overlooked.

Our great supreme leader has spoken. Let's not procrastinate. We must place our trust, faith, and undying loyalty in our leader's judgment as well as make the necessary sacrifices to serve the greater good of our people. The World Church of the Creator relies on you, the member/supporter, for contributions to cover the costs of its daily operations, i.e. printing, postage, traveling, legal fees, etc. With the Church creating businesses, it will become more efficient and self-reliant.

The Edgefield Primary Group is asking (challenging) every Creator to participate in the Relocation Fund Marathon by simply writing to PM Hale and making a pledge of a fixed amount per month, in addition to your membership/supporter dues and the purchase of any Church materials, for the entire year of 29AC (2002).

Indeed, it is extremely generous of PM Hale and the Creators in central Illinois to "do everything humanly possible" to assist those Creators making the pilgrimage; however, they should not be made to shoulder the burden alone. It is the duty of every Creator to give aid to our Brothers/Sisters moving to central Illinois. Every Creator should give a little so that no Creator has to give a lot. The amount of your pledge is of less concern than that you give something.

The Relocation Fund marathon will begin January 1, 29AC and end on December 31, 29AC. Our goal is to raise $1,000,000. A running balance will be printed quarterly in The Struggle. All participating Creators will receive a Certificate of Appreciation upon the completion of the marathon. Your dollars can and will make a change.

It is with great pleasure that the members/supporters of the Edgefield Primary Group pledge to aid our Brothers and Sisters relocating to central Illinois. We sincerely appreciate the sacrifices you are making for the benefit of our community. History will reflect upon each of you as true stalwarts in our struggle.

*Dear PM Hale,

We, the below listed, hereby pledge the following amounts for the year of 29AC toward the Relocation Fund: Rev. Allen Parr--not less than $50 per month;

Brother Roy White--not less than $50 per month;

Brother Bobby Dedeaux--not less than $50 per month;

Brother Michael Tudor--not less than $20 per month;

Brother Bobby Howard--not less than $5 per month;

Brother Jeffrey Gray--not less than $5 per month...RAHOWA!

Survival and Prosperity Through Creativity by Reverend Matt Hayhow

Change is certain. Throughout one's life, mind and body are constantly adapting to hereditary and environmental influences. Science and history have shown that the environmental factors are secondary, and muted/directed by the primary, guiding genes. A limited upbringing can be overcome by strong genes and the best of all possible situations can decay unreaped by the child with weak ones. The child with the strong inheritance has the ability to transcend his background. Utilizing this innate capability is what decides his eventual gain (or loss). To progress, he is required to think and work diligently. The child's efforts promise no large, immediate gratification--only greater future potential.

The progress of societies and peoples, like the growth of individuals, depends on the Blood, ideas, and effort of the people in them. If thoughtful, industrious, and motivated for advancement, the society can thrive for hundreds of years and its impact can last for millennia. The glories of Rome still influence the world today.

To make the transition from an individual with ideas and dreams to a better society requires the development of an institution--in particular, our institution, the World Church of the Creator. A historian, Gustavson, had some cogent comments on institutions: "An idea is not likely to survive in a hostile world without some sort of a shield; like a clam growing a shell about itself, the Idea stimulates its believers to create an institution for its protection and for more effective delivery of its message."

Constructing the shield for our Creative Idea needs sound and hard working Creators. Our genes are the foundation upon which our personal ability and potential rely, and we are the cells on which our Church depends. Like genes, we have the "blueprint" for the survival, expansion, and advancement of the "body" of which we are a part--the World Church of the Creator. Our Sacred Books, almost thirty years of institutional life experience, and our own desire and vigor are that blueprint.

According to Professor Gustavson's studies of history, to survive and prosper, an institution must have "1) the necessary economic support; 2) the facilities for convincing the populace of its value; 3) tools for defense, spiritual and material, in case of attack; and 4) sufficient discipline within the group to avoid internal conflicts."

Think about it. Creativity and the World Church of the Creator have already made concrete advances in these areas. The dues, purchases, and donations of our increasing supporters and members improve our financial resources. With the distribution of Creativity's books and literature (especially the Facts booklet), personal proselytizing, public meetings and protests, videos for public access television, phone messages, and organization of these into a cohesive whole, we are developing the facility for convincing the White populace of Creativity's value. Our spiritual defense is strong because our Idea (Creativity) and our Ideals (What a Creator is...) are sound. The advancing organizational structure of our Church (Official Supporters, Ministerial responsibility, the White Berets, and Prison Ministries) and the vigor of individual chapters worldwide are the beginnings of a durable and flexible material defense. The above organizing, the Leadership Principle, our Holy Creed (based on responsibility), and the fact that we adherents of Creativity really care about and are working constructively to build a Whiter and Brighter World for our people, limits the occurrence and impact of any internal conflicts.

Some may whisper that these are but baby steps. They are right! We're a little wobbly and not yet light on our feet, but we will be, for this baby has the blood of scientists, craftsmen, athletes, warriors, and leaders, and the blood will tell. We're just walking, but soon...soon, "Much will rise again that has long been buried, and much become submerged which is held in honor today..."--Horace RAHOWA!

BIBLE STUDY
SELFISHNESS - A KEY TO CHRISTIANITY
by Brother Robert L. Johnson

Creativity, as a Natural religion, flies in the face of all "revealed" religions. The fact that Creativity is based on Nature and not on a "revelation" that can never be proven, as Christianity is, gives it a quality that all the "revealed" religions combined can never provide. That quality is that it can satisfy the reasoning ability of its followers.

Free of the burdensome weight of "revelation," Creativity has no embarrassing situations that Christianity and all of the various "revealed" religions are full of. Here is a handful of examples that demonstrates the unreasonableness of Christianity as well as Judaism. The Bible is loaded with many, many more examples of contradictions and lies.

1. Why is there a New Testament? Was the Old Testament faulty and needed to be replaced? And if that's the case, why does the New claim the Old for authenticity?
2. Why are there two separate Creation stories, one at Genesis 1:1 and the other at Genesis 2:4?
3. Why in II Kings 2:23-24 did God send two she-bears (in the Catholic version of the Bible it's simply "bears") to kill 42 "small boys" simply for teasing Elisha concerning his bald head?
4. Why in Exodus 11:10, the blasphemous Passover horror story, did God "harden Pharaoh's heart, and he did not let the people of Israel go out of his land", and then in Exodus 12:29, the "Lord" slew the first-born of everyone, even the animals, to punish Pharaoh for not doing what God allegedly made impossible for him to do?
5. Why is II Kings 19 identical to Isaiah 37, and why is II Chronicles 36:22 identical to Ezra 1:1 through most of 1:3?
6. Why in Joshua 10:12-14 does it say God made the sun stand still to give the Jews more time to slaughter another nation, when in reality the sun is stationary in relation to the earth?
7. Why, in Matthew 1:6, is the genealogy from David to Jesus 28 generations while in Luke 3:23 it is 43 generations? And why is Joseph listed in both genealogies if Jesus was conceived via a "miraculous conception"?
8. Why, if the story in Matthew 2:13-19 is true concerning Herod killing the children two years and under, wasn't John the Baptist killed, who was the same age as his cousin Jesus according to Luke 1:5-80?
9. Why does Mark 15:25 state Jesus was crucified at the third hour (9:00am) while John 19:14 states it was the sixth hour (12:00 pm)?
10. Why does I Thessalonians 4:14-18 speak in the first person present tense and states, "that we who are alive..., shall be caught up with them in the clouds...", (referring to the second coming of Christ) when they weren't?

A common misconception regarding Christianity is that it aids in making people better. This couldn't be further from the truth! One characteristic of a person that no one would consider positive is selfishness. Selfishness and greed go hand in hand. They bring about many negative consequences such as theft, graft, and even war, and yet selfishness is the core of Christianity and its Bible.

What is the reason that Jesus gives for not donating to the poor in a way that makes your giving public knowledge? In Matthew 6:1-4 we find the answer. It reads, "Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven. Therefore when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward. But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth: That thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret himself shall reward thee openly." This shows that even helping the poor in the Christian Bible is for a reward. The Jewish "what's in it for me" attitude--that has taken over virtually all of modern society--is promoted in the Bible of the Christians.

Even the famous Sermon on the Mount is based on selfishness. An example is Matthew 5:11-12, "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceedingly glad: for great is your reward in heaven...". Again, this is selfishness as a motivation for being a Christian. Contrast this Jewish attitude with Creativity. Creativity promises no reward for doing what is right other than the satisfaction of altruism--the satisfaction of knowing that you are sacrificing to make a better world for White children and those of your Race who will follow you. Of course, Creativity was created by and for White People as opposed to Judaism and its after-birth Christianity which are both the products of Jewish myth. RAHOWA!

Letters

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

I am a new Creator. As a matter of fact, at the time of this writing, I have been a member of our Church for a mere seven days. However, I am no stranger to Creativity. I have been a Racial Loyalist for half of my life (I am 25) and I have read all of the Holy Books of Creativity I could find which is almost all of them. Recently I was conversing with a racial comrade of mine and he was wondering "why does the World Church of the Creator have such a big turnover rate." I feel it is because the WCOTC asks its members to be active. Oh, how much easier it is to simply find a few "racist" pals and sit around and constantly rehash your beliefs or the deplorable condition of our society and be sure to harp about the niggers (so long as they are not around). However, our Founder and PM Hale will have none of this! I say thank goodness for their indefatigable courage and willpower, for saying the truth and making no excuses, for being dedicated to the solution instead of being stymied by the problems! So, realizing this, I joined our glorious Creativity Movement! I traveled last weekend to East Peoria from Iowa and received my certificate straight from the Pontifex Maximus Reverend Matt Hale. From there, we went to Champaign, Illinois and I heard the spoken word of Creativity! These things are so simple and took little effort on my part, but were far reaching beyond the time it took me to travel.

I want to say to anyone contemplating the World Church of the Creator that we are not just books that you read or a website to look at. These are but a few of our tools to reach you but by no means our entirety. While some hide in compounds in the woods, we choose to put ourselves in harms way. While some armchair generals of the "Movement" choose to tell others what to do, our Leader shows us by example and is completely accessible to us. He does not hide behind his post office box. He stands freely amongst us (at the helm in fact!) teaching us how to deal with adversity. So, White Man, don't shortchange yourself. Put your ego, fear, laziness, negativity, and loathing aside! Become active in straightening out the White Man's thinking and then you can be rest assured that there is one less rascal in the world. If you understand that the White Race is shrinking out of existence--if you truly understand this in your heart, then what viable excuse do you have not to band together and put yourself in league with the one and only, true and revolutionary White Racial Religion, Creativity? You have no excuse.

This in itself is the answer to our Church's turnover rate. The WCOTC challenges you to become better than you now are, no matter what your station in life. I for one am not here to tell every White person how spectacular they are as an individual for it is only when I view greatness in a person's deeds do I deem them great.

In closing, I have a quote from Ben Klassen for all deserters of the World Church of the Creator--past, present, and future: "Join the Nigger community. Crawl into a rat hole and die. I never want to hear from you again." (Expanding Creativity p. 251). RAHOWA!

A Quote from William Shakespeare...

Whoever does not have the stomach for this fight, let him depart. Give him money to speed his departure since we wish not to die in that man's company. Whoever lives past today and comes home safely will rouse himself every year on this day, show his neighbor his scars, and tell embellished stories of all their great feats of battle. Their stories he will teach his son and from this day until the end of the world we shall be remembered."

Hale's World Church suffers legal setback

11/22/28AC Florida Journal Star

Illinois Supreme Court ruling means Jim Ryan's lawsuit may proceed

By ADRIANA COUNDRIS
of Copy News Service

SPRINGFIELD — White supremacist Matt Hale and his World Church of the Creator suffered a legal setback Wednesday when the Illinois Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of a state law governing charitable organizations.

The ruling means Attorney General Jim Ryan's lawsuit against the World Church may proceed in Cook County Circuit Court. The suit, filed in 1999, claims that the church is a charitable organization under state law and therefore must register with the attorney general and account for the funds it solicits.

Hale, an East Peorian, and his lawyer had contended that the law was unconstitutionally vague and failed to adequately define "charitable organization" and "charitable purpose." Because of that, Hale argued, the attorney general's office couldn't force his church to open its financial books.

A Cook County judge last year agreed with that argument and dismissed the lawsuit. Ryan appealed to the Supreme Court.

In a unanimous ruling written by Justice Rita Garman, the Supreme Court reversed the circuit judge's decision and said the terms "charitable organization" and "charitable purpose" aren't unconstitutionally vague.

"Although the terms at issue in this case are broad in scope, we fail to see how they could be more precisely defined," Garman wrote.

In addition, the court said the law's registration and reporting requirements for charities "are narrowly tailored to serve the state's substantial governmental interest in protecting its citizens from fraud and do not unnecessarily burden First Amendment speech."

In a phone interview, Hale said that despite the Supreme Court decision, he plans to continue the legal battle on behalf of the World Church and file an appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Illinois Supreme Court ruling "can plausibly be believed, but I don't think (the justices') motives were pure," he said. "The motive is simply to stop our existence as a religious institution."

"This has nothing to do with trying to protect the public. Everybody knows what we believe in," said Hale, who heads the World Church as its "pontifex maximus." "We exist for the betterment of white people, and as far as we're concerned, only white people are human beings."

Hale said most churches don't have to register with the state, and he accused Ryan, a Republican candidate for governor, of trying to use the World Church to gain political mileage.

"The bottom line is that the attorney general has unfettered discretion to sue anybody he personally doesn't like or who might facilitate his career and claim they are a charity," Hale said.

In a prepared statement, Ryan said of Wednesday's ruling: "We're pleased that the high court agreed with our contention that Illinois charitable law is sufficiently specific and thus constitutional. This will allow the attorney general's office to continue regulating charities as it has done for decades."

Ryan sued the World Church shortly after ex-church member Benjamin Smith's shooting binge over the 1999 Independence Day weekend.

Before committing suicide, Smith killed two people, including former Northwestern University basketball coach Ricky Byrdson. He wounded nine others. All of his victims were members of minority groups.

Ryan is seeking to freeze the group's assets and stop Hale and his group from conducting business until all financial records are accounted for. Ryan also wants Hale and the World Church to pay a $1,000 fine and court costs.

Hale, who won't disclose the number of members in his church, said Wednesday's ruling didn't surprise him.

"After all, this is the same body that declined to hear my law license case," he said.

In 1999, Hale was denied a license to practice law in Illinois, and the state Supreme Court declined to hear the case. Hale has since taken the matter to federal court, where it remains.

Do not use charity laws to fight Hale's 'church'

The Illinois Supreme Court last week issued a ruling that could hurt the World Church of the Creator's ability to operate in secret.

Normally, anything that hurts the WCOTC is welcome news.

But, the Illinois Attorney General's efforts to redefine the East Peoria-based organization as a charity deserves more caution than enthusiasm. In 1999, WCOTC member Benjamin Smith went on a shooting spree that killed two people and wounded nine, all of whom belonged to minority groups.

Attorney General Jim Ryan then sued the WCOTC, claiming it was a "charitable organization" and was required by state law to register with Ryan's office and provide information about how it raises and spends money.

As a church, the WCOTC would be under no obligation to provide information to the government.

Hale said the law was too vague and didn't adequately define "charitable organization" and "charitable purpose."

A Cook County judge dismissed Ryan's case last year. But the state supreme court overruled that decision. It said the law in question was constitutional because it was designed to protect its citizens from fraud, a legitimate role of the government.

Where is the fraud? Is there anyone who has given money to this group thinking their money was going to a legitimate church?

The laws being used by Ryan have a noble purpose: protecting the public against being ripped off by fake charities.

There is nothing fake about Hale. He is every bit the racist basement-dweller he appears to be.

Ryan should concentrate on these kinds of crimes — and on prosecuting Hale and his church members when they commit real crimes.

Hale vowed to appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court. He probably will win, giving him the public victory he craves.

Ryan is seeking to freeze the WCOTC's assets until Hale's group provides the required information, which is probably what the attorney general wanted all the time.

As satisfying as it would be to see the WCOTC denied the right to spend and collect money, the public should be wary of any attempt by the government to define what is and what is not a church.

The WCOTC is not what most people have in mind when they think of "church." But the same thing has been said about many groups, including, for example, the Mormon Church or Jehovah's Witnesses. While it seems inconceivable that any modern government would persecute either of these two respectable churches, that hasn't always been the case.

Hale and his followers are dangerous — they have proven that to be the case, despite his denials — but the way to fight them is not limiting our freedoms. As distasteful as the WCOTC is, they have a right to exist as an organization. The way to fight a phony church is through spreading the word about good ones.

Hale vows to appeal new ruling

By Kurt Erickson
STAFFHOUSE BUREAU CHIEF

SPRINGFIELD — Matt Hale, a well-known white supremacist from East Peoria, has lost yet another battle with the Illinois Supreme Court.

The high court, in a unanimous decision released Wednesday, upheld a state law that requires charities to register and report financial records to the state.

The ruling, written by Justice Rita Garman, could result in Hale's World Church of the Creator being forced to pay a $1,000 fine as well as stop soliciting funds in Illinois.

Hale, who earlier was turned away by the court in a bid to get a license to practice law in Illinois, said he would appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"We have a right to exist as a religion and exist as a church whether or not people like our particular church or religion. We are not a business. People need to understand that," said Hale. "We are a viewpoint. We are an ideology. We are a religion."

The case against Hale was brought by Illinois Attorney General Jim Ryan in the aftermath of a deadly 1999 shooting rampage by Hale associate Benjamin Smith.

Ryan filed suit saying the church should register as a charitable organization.

The case was heard by the Supreme Court because Hale had successfully fought Ryan's lawsuit in a Cook County courtroom, where Judge Julia Nowicki ruled last year that the law requiring charitable groups to register with the state was unconstitutional.

Hale argued that state law defines a charitable organization as a group dedicated to benevolent, patriotic or philanthropic purpose. The only benevolence afforded by his group, he said, is for a specific type of people — whites.

"Who honestly believes that a so-called hate group is a charity," Hale said.

In its ruling, however, the court said the state act was "narrowly tailored to serve the state's substantial government interest in protecting its citizens from fraud."

Writing for the court, Garman wrote that the definition of "charitable organization" is so well understood that it has been incorporated into other Illinois statutes, such as the state's bingo license law.

The case is No. 89780.

Santa Parade organizers bar Matt Hale

Journal Star Nov. 9, 28 A.C.

White supremacist leader threatens to file lawsuit

By ANDY KRAVETZ

PEORIA — Santa Parade organizers have denied white supremacist Matt Hale and his group a permit to participate in this year's parade.

"We reserve the right to accept applications of any organization or to reject them," said Susie Stockman, who runs the Santa Parade committee for the Peoria Area Community Events group. "We run a nice, clean, entertaining parade, and we stand on that principle."

The Santa Parade "is to entertain children, not to make a statement," she said.

Hale, leader of the East Peoria-based World Church of the Creator, applied last month to participate in the parade. He and other members wanted to carry a large banner that said "Pride in White People."

"It was not going to be malicious in nature," he said. "We are well aware that a lot of kids are going to be watching."

On Oct. 24, Todd Davis, who serves on PACE's board of directors, wrote Hale to tell him his request was denied.

To Hale, the issue is one of religious freedom. He feels PACE barred his group based upon its beliefs, which he finds unacceptable.

"Wouldn't you be upset if you were told that you couldn't participate in a Santa parade?" he asked. "I refuse to accept the notion that I am a second- or third-class citizen in this country."

In a Nov. 8 letter to PACE, Hale wrote: "Unless you immediately send us an application and recognize our right to participate in the parade along with others of different racial, religious and political backgrounds, you can expect to be sued."

Stockman said no one has sued PACE for being denied a permit in the 14 years she has been associated with the parade.

Hale's church rejects Christianity and other religions. Instead, his church believes white people are superior to others they deem inferior, such as Jews and blacks.

For more than 100 years, the parade has been a Peoria tradition. The floats owned by PACE reflect a bygone era where children were more interested in gingerbread men and fairy tales than video games and VCRs.

Stockman said organizers have turned people away in the past, including representatives of the United Auto Workers union who wanted to participate in the parade in the midst of labor strife with Caterpillar Inc.

Study: Hate groups use fears to recruit

Champaign News-Gazette 11/12/28AC

CHICAGO (AP) — Midwest white-supremacist groups are using the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks to recruit new members, according to a study by a Chicago-area anti-racism group.

The Center for New Community, a 6-year-old faith-based organization in Oak Park, counts 338 "white nationalist" groups in 10 Midwestern states. Some of them are using images of the burning World Trade Center towers to advocate closing America's borders, the group says in a report called "State of Hate: White Nationalism in the Midwest 2000-2001."

"These organizations have been responsible for several rallies, public events, distribution of literature and even a few crimes in recent months," said Devin Burghart, who directs the center's Building Democracy Initiative. "They're trying to use anti-Arab and anti-Muslim sentiment in the wake of Sept. 11."

Among the Illinois groups studied are a branch of the Ku Klux Klan in Prospect Heights, the East Peoria-based World Church of the Creator, a white-power record company in Tinsley Park, and the John Birch Society in Glencoe.

Fifty-six of the groups operate in Illinois and 22 of those are in the Chicago area. Others are in Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and Ohio. Ohio has the most, with 73.

Since Sept. 11, the Neo-Nazi National Alliance has distributed fliers throughout the Chicago area that feature the attacks on the World Trade Center and the phrase, "Close our Borders!" Burghart said. In the city's northern suburbs, National Alliance members have handed out fliers blaming the attacks on the Jewish community.

Shortly after the attacks, members of the World Church of the Creator attended demonstrations in Bridgeview, a suburb southwest of Chicago. Hundreds waved flags and marched on a mosque there.

"World Church of the Creator members were out amongst the crowd looking for recruits, handing out literature," Burghart said.

The study found that in the last year, 33 percent of white-nationalist groups in the Midwest were actively recruiting young people. That compares with 10 percent in 1998-99, the last time the center studied the region.

Court rejects racist church's legal challenge

CHAMPAIGN NEWS-GAZETTE 11/22/28AC

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois Supreme Court dealt a legal blow to white supremacist Matt Hale on Wednesday, upholding a state law that requires charities to register and report finances to the government.

The court rejected Hale's argument that the law violated the Constitution because it is so vague no one can understand it.

Attorney General Jim Ryan sued Hale's World Church of the Creator in July 1999 for failing to register as a charity and disclose its finances. Ryan contends Hale's organization is a charity, not a church.

Charities must be registered in Illinois so the state can protect people from fraudulent fund raising, but the First Amendment keeps government's hands off churches.

The lawsuit was filed just days after Benjamin Smith, a former member of Hale's group, went on a shooting spree in Illinois and Indiana targeting minorities. He killed two people and injured nine before killing himself.

Ryan is trying to fine the East Peoria-based World Church $1,000, freeze its assets and ban it from soliciting funds in Illinois. The case now returns to Cook County Circuit Court.

Hale said Ryan, a Republican candidate for governor, is trying to score political points by shutting down what Hale says is a church.

Hale said he doesn't know how many people belong to the church, and he declined to discuss its finances.

He complained the state's Solicitation Act is so vague no one can tell which groups it covers. A Cook County judge agreed and overturned the law, sending the issue directly to the Supreme Court.

Justice Rita Garman, writing the opinion for a unanimous court, said the lower court relied on court cases that overturned laws governing fund raising because they did not define the types of organizations covered.

The Illinois law's definition, which describes "charitable organizations" as those formed for "benevolent, philanthropic, patriotic" or other purposes, is sufficient, she said.

Ryan, who issued a two-sentence statement expressing pleasure with the ruling, argued Hale's group qualifies as a charity because it sells items such as "The White Man's Bible" to support religious activities.

Hale said he will argue in circuit court that if the law applies to his group, it violates the constitutional separation of church and state. He also says he will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review the case.

supremacist and anti-Semitic organization based in East Peoria, Ill.

In July 1999, a gunman affiliated with the group killed himself after a shooting spree in Illinois and Indiana that killed a black man and a Korean American man. Nine other Jews, Asians and blacks were injured in the rampage.

The sheet attached to the booklet quotes bin Laden and implies that the Sept. 11 attacks would not have taken place had the United States severed ties with Israel.

The flier also bears a handwritten local address — a post office box at the Churn Creek post office, but no name.

A spokeswoman for the U.S. Postal Service said she could not release the name of the person who rents the post office box.

Redding police said they were not sure how many residents called them to complain and they did not know how widely the material had been distributed.

Olson said the paper fielded "a handful" of calls.

Distribution of religious or political material does not require a city permit, said a spokeswoman for the Redding city clerk's office.

Though not illegal, the material is disturbing, said Jim Mark, director of the Jewish Community Center of Shasta County.

"First of all, America doesn't have a better ally than Israel at this moment," Mark said.

The World Church of the Creator, he said, "is a group of desperate people trying for some identity and clearly going back to bigotry ... which the person of average intelligence understands is preposterous."

Marty Fallick, president of Redding's Congregation Beth Israel, said it is "unfortunate" when hate organizations surface, but noted that Redding also has organizations that fight racism and anti-Semitism, such as Shasta County Citizens Against Racism.

who wanted to be on a car and we didn't allow that. If they wanted in, they could be in the mayor's group but not specially noted in a car," she said.

Hale disagreed. "I am sure you are going to see American flags there. If American flags are going to be there and promoting American values, then we have a right to be there with our flag and our values," he said. "They may have a desire not to have anything controversial in their parade, but it is a public street and thoroughfare."

Even though he can't participate, Hale said there is a strong chance he and members of his group will attend the event, which will wind through downtown the morning after Thanksgiving.

"Anyone who would accost us or stop us from demonstrating will have a real problem," he said. "If people put their hands on us, they are going to have a real problem."

Gibbs had argued that Faughnan's decision violated his rights. World Church of the Creator, an Illinois-based organization led by Matthew Hale, did not support violence and was not a hate group, he said.

Gibbs lawyer, Thomas Farver, said he was not aware of any case law or statutes that would disqualify someone for belonging to a particular group.

Gibbs said Friday that he planned to file a lawsuit against Faughnan, Del. Joseph Flynn, who investigated his background, the town of Clinton for hiring the two officers and the five state board members who made the decision.

He said he could not comment further.

Faughnan said he was very pleased that the board supported his decision unanimously.

Gibbs could ask for his case to be reconsidered one year from the original hearing date, which was Oct. 4.

Clinton — The state Board of Firearms Permit Examiners has ruled that a member of a white supremacist organization is unsuitable for a handgun permit, upholding a decision by Clinton Police Chief Joseph Faughnan in June.

The board decided Tuesday that Michael Gibbs, 24, is a "recruiter for a recognized hate group, World Church of the Creator, associated with violence."

According to the board's letter to Faughnan, Gibbs admitted that he accepts the organization's goal, which would result in the forced removal of all non-white and non-Christian American citizens.

The board cannot find that Mr. Gibbs is suitable to receive a pistol permit, the letter said.

Race tackled by website

MEGHAN FARRELLY

Tackling the race debate in a calm and rational way has never seemed simple; however, a new website has been developed to make discussing race and other issues easier by providing more information.

University of Portland professor Peter Boghossian said the purpose of his website, Racial Dialectics, is to present both sides of an issue in easily understood language. He added the issues are usually seen as taboo, and gave examples such as sexuality and the site's current topic, race.

dissertation discussing their side. People who visit the site and wish to discuss the issue are instructed to submit a response.

The site is "for people who want to examine, challenge and question their beliefs," Boghossian said.

Race, which is currently being discussed on the site, has been interesting, according to Boghossian. He asked World Church of the Creator Rev. Matt Hale to submit an article discussing his perspective on the issue.

Hale gave the opportunity to church member Brother John Bash.

Boghossian was happy to have Bash write the opposing article because it is sometimes difficult to find someone to write the "non-politically correct" side of the issue.

Leonard Lieberman, a professor at Central Michigan University, wrote the opposing argument that race does not exist. Since reading Bash's article, Lieberman has submitted a response questioning some of Bash's statements.

When he visited the site, Hale said it was very balanced to both sides of the issue.

At first, Boghossian received a lot of criticism from visitors to the site. He said most people were angry because they did not think the issues should be discussed. He has since received more praise regarding the equal treatment to issues.

Boghossian said, "A necessary condition for democracy is to have free and open discourse."

"People cannot say Matt Hale is wrong simply because they do not believe in what he says," added Boghossian.

"The website gives the people the tools to make better decisions," Boghossian said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Champion News Gazette Hezbollah

Don't assume what's written in NG is truth

To the editor:
Over the last 11 years in which I have been an activist for the interests of white people, I have grown accustomed to the controlled mass media deliberately seeking to denigrate the people and turn them against the noble message that my church and I represent. I have grown accustomed to endless lies as well as endless own bankrupt philosophy as well as their catering to the almighty dollar, are unable to offer argument against what I promote. Instead, they simply attack us personally and hope that their incessant propaganda will fill the people with hate for the World Church of the Creator and me.

The News Gazette, in fact, is even worse than most. The recent editorial, "Invoking a right not to listen," is another vicious attack upon my white brothers and sisters in of our World Church of the Creator.

Over the years, the News-Gazette has railed against "hatred" and yet has revealed its almost maniacal hatred of sincere flesh and blood people who merely feel that their own white people are worthy of loyalty. Its editorials clearly that it is the editorial staff of the News-Gazette that has more hatred in their hearts than do I.

In this latest editorial, we are insulted — not because we are wrong, but because of a perverse lust for abuse on the part of the authors. My adherents are called "nutwits" and my title that I was duly elected to — pontifex maximus — is mocked.

I urge the readers to not assume that what is written in this paper is the truth. Ask yourself why the newspaper resorts to name calling rather than addressing the grievances that I aired at the Campaign Public Library. Ask why the News-Gazette calls me a "publicity hound" but devotes many pages of ink to what I do. Maybe it's time for the good citizens of Champagne-Urbana to demand better of their newspaper. I will continue to preach what is true regardless of the shrieks from the peanut gallery.

MATT HALE,

Hale's group a terrorist threat?

Public should not be complacent, FBI and hate-group experts warn

East Peoria Times-Courier Nov. 7, 2001

By DeWayne Bartels

Times Newspapers

White supremacist Matt Hale doesn't like being called a domestic terrorist threat.

In an interview at his East Peoria home, Hale said neither he or his followers are terrorists of any kind.

"That's asinine... Our intent is not to terrorize anyone, but to educate people and inspire people," Hale said.

Authorities say otherwise.

Ignoring Hale is the last thing that Americans should do, one high-ranking federal official said last year.

"On the national level, formal right-wing hate groups, such as the World Church of the Creator and the Aryan Nations, represent a continuing terrorist threat," said Louis Freeh, while director of the FBI on May 10, 2001, during testimony before the U.S. Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

One hate group expert agreed with Freeh.

"Louis Freeh is absolutely accurate when he states that radical organizations within the militia movement are a continuous terrorist threat," said Sean Gilmore, a professor at Baldwin-Wallace College, in Ohio. "The Church of the Creator and the Aryan Nations both preach hate and are embedded in a movement that trains domestic terrorists how to use weapons to bring about destruction."

Gilmore spent the summer interviewing and interacting with members of hate groups.

The spectre of domestic terrorism seems larger today than in May. The federal government suggested domestic terrorists may be behind recent anthrax attacks.

Local public safety organizations began preparing for a domestic terrorist threat more than three years ago, according to the Peoria Fire Department. That came as a suggestion from the U.S. Department of Justice. The reason, in large part, was Matt Hale.

Yet, many locally still write off Hale as a member of a fringe group, public safety officials say.

Hale says while he is no domestic terrorist, it would be a mistake for people locally to write off him and his followers off as on the "fringe."

Hale, while not happy to be labeled a potential domestic terrorist threat, is not toning down his rhetoric a bit. If anything, it may be getting a little bolder.

'I'm a propagandist'

Hale who usually welcomes any kind of media attention, said he did not relish talking about this subject.

He agreed to speak, he said, only to defend himself.

"The FBI, the justice department knows full well we're not terrorists. I'd say I'm one of the most watched people in Illinois," Hale said. "Certainly if I was about to commit anything close to terrorism, I wouldn't be free to talk here now."

Hale typically blames Jews for causing the FBI and justice department to say things about him publicly.

"Perhaps the FBI is saying these things to placate them and actually doing nothing. I'm in contact with the FBI and have been for some time," Hale said.

The Peoria office of the FBI did not return calls.

"We've had a good working relationship with the FBI for some time. I'd be surprised if the average local FBI agent believed we're domestic terrorists."

Hale said terrorism is not his style.

"My interest is peaceful, legal change," he said. "People should ask themselves this question: How many terrorists demonstrate on a street corner with a sign and a flag?"

"I'm a propagandist, imparting ideas to the people. We have ideas. Some people don't like our ideas. That's something they'll have to deal with."

Fringe no more

Something else Hale said local residents will have to deal with is the fact that his church is growing, especially after Sept. 11.

"It is gaining ground. We are gaining new members in this area," Hale said.

The Sept. 11 attacks are part of the reason is Sept. 11, he said. The other is a concerted effort to consolidate his followers in the Peoria area.

"I would definitely disagree with the notion that somehow we are still just a fringe group," Hale said. "I think a lot of people, especially after what happened on Sept. 11, feel we have been right all along. A lot of people are ready to draw the line."

Hale said that if his ideas scare people, they will have to deal with it.

"If they're fearful, that's too bad. They should join us or leave," he said.

Hale bristled when Benjamin

Smith's name was brought up, and asked if his beliefs had contributed to Smith's actions. Smith, a former follower of Hale's was involved in a killing spree in July of 1999, targeting blacks, Jews and Asians. Two people were left dead and seven wounded throughout the Midwest, before Smith took his own life.

"You have to pin blame on the person responsible, not on a belief system. It's as simple as that," Hale said. "That's guilt by association. I thought that was bad. No belief makes anyone do anything."

Too dangerous to ignore

It can be dangerous to ignore people like Hale, as inviting as that may seem, according to one expert in white supremacy groups.

Dr. Jennifer Holmes, an associate professor of government at the University of Texas, said it is very dangerous to ignore Hale and his followers, especially at this time. She said that even if Hale and his followers are harmless, the people they could attract may not be.

"People of a like mind attract each other. It's likely other hate groups are already in your area, or headed there," Holmes said. "There's always the possibility that Peoria is home to other underground hate groups. That's something you really need to watch."

Holmes said, however, the response to hate groups has to be very measured.

"The deal is with most of these groups is they are very reactive. When they feel threatened by the government they can become very dangerous," Holmes said. "They do merit watching. But, if you crack down on them that's when they become dangerous."

Holmes said many hate groups are growing rapidly, especially after Sept. 11. The Southern Law Poverty Center, which watches hate groups, has labeled the World Church of the Creator as the fastest growing hate group in the nation.

"Denying Hale his law license was absolutely the wrong thing to do," Holmes said. "It gives him a grievance to work with."

"That's exactly why this group merits attention. Contact with these groups is essential. There is a lot of ignorance about the groups. People need to be aware. It is dangerous to ignore them."

Gilmore agreed. "The presence of Hale should definitely concern local citizens because domestic terrorism almost always follows these hate groups," he said.

"Whether Hale commits acts of terrorism or his followers, these groups should be taken as a serious threat. All soldiers within violent movements need a violent revolution in which to believe. Hale provides domestic terrorists that revolution."

Terrorists can be domestic

Matt Hale has been on the minds of a number of people in Peoria's public safety community.

But, Hale did not pop into their minds, of late. He has been on their minds for over three years.

Mike Morrow, a captain with the Peoria Fire Department, said, in October that Peoria's public safety community has been preparing for a terrorist attack for three years or more. The threat they were addressing was not international, but domestic. And, one man, Hale, was largely responsible.

Morrow said the United States Department of Justice had warned Peoria that it needed to be prepared for Hale and his followers.

"Terrorism can have either an international face or a domestic one. If I asked someone prior to 1994, to name the 10 cities most likely to be hit by a domestic terrorist attack no one would have named Oklahoma City. That's the mindset we look at.

Whose to say we're not a target. What they can do is limited only by their imagination," Morrow said in October.

"I talked to an FBI agent when I was going to a school in Iowa. He said, 'What better thing for domestic terrorists to do than to hit the heartland and show how vulnerable we are.' He said that would show people they can get people right where they live.

"The FBI had 181 cases of terrorism in 1988, and had 100 in the first half of 1999. There's been biological and chemical attacks on a small scale in the U.S. by hate groups. The FBI tells us there are 500 hate groups in the U.S., 47 in Illinois and about five in the Peoria area. In my mind, I think, if they see the ball's rolling, what's to say they won't jump in."

The Peoria County Sheriff's Department takes Hale seriously.

"We're worried about all the extremist groups. Be it Matt Hale or hit someone else. We keep our eyes and ears open always," sheriff Chuck Schofield, said, last week.

"If Matt Hale were to come to the county courthouse, for example, he would get our undivided attention.

Dennis Reinhart, East Peoria deputy chief of police, said his department keeps an eye on Hale.

"We keep an eye on him. But, do we take him seriously? That's a hard question to answer," Reinhart said.

"It's like a lot of things in our business. You plan for the worst, but hope for the best. You have to keep Benjamin Smith in your mind, as it relates to Matt Hale."

Smith, a follower of Hale's, went on a racist killing spree in July of 1999. Smith's three-day blitz ended with his suicide. He killed two and wounded seven — all blacks, Jews or Asians.

"We just can't ignore Hale," Reinhart said.

Reinhart said he was unaware of Hale's effort to consolidate his church in East Peoria thereby attracting even more of his followers to the area.

"That interests me very much," he said.

Peoria Police Chief John Stenson was out of town and unavailable for comment. The Peoria office of the FBI did not return several calls requesting a comment.

Diversity festival planned for night of Hale's speech

Nov. 6, 2001

CHAMPAIGN — A festival celebrating diversity is scheduled for the same time as a racist speaker plans to return to Champaign.

Matt Hale, who calls himself a minister, will return to the Champaign Public Library, 505 S. Randolph St., after it closes on Saturday, speaking at 7 p.m.

The University YMCA, 1001 S. Wright St., C. will hold a festival celebrating cultural, ethnic and religious diversity from 6 to 10 p.m. on Saturday.

The YMCA event will begin with a prayer service at 6 p.m., and a diversity festival will start at 7 p.m. The festival will include music, speakers, activities for children, a coffeehouse and discussion groups.

It is sponsored by the All Colors Collaborative Committee, made up of the YWCA, YMCA, Human Services Council of Champaign County and the city of Champaign.
